J. Henry Miller, ex-Secretary of the Kentucky Association, an ex-breeder of thoroughbreds and a horseman widely known, died at his home at Lexington yesterday of paralysis.

The Paris Gazette says all of the applicants for the Paris Postoffice have agreed to pay a fee of $100,000 each, but Mr. Asquith's trial next February will be the last to be held.

If he is convicted he can be released to him to have the place. If this cannot be, the pushing, shoving, panting and cursing will again be resumed.

Dr. Edward Browne of Kansas City, Mo., has arrived here and is assisting his sister, Dr. Anna B. Hewins, her husband, Dr. W. C. Hewins, and Dr. C. Moloy of the Central Presbyterian Church and Dr. John Barbour of the First Presbyterian Church. The remains will be taken to Cincinnati at 8:30 tomorrow morning, where Dr. Browne will be held and the remains interred in Spring Grove Cemetery.

In view of the fact that they have but one copy of each book, the Board of Library Commissioners of the Public Library has ordered that the Library Association and every county subscriber to two weeks in the use of a book. The weather and the distance are excellent excuses, but for $1 per month they can't expect to keep a book longer than two weeks. The Public Library is laid out on the plan of forbidding any subscriber to loan a book outside of his own house. The Librarian has been informed of some who break this rule.

GREAT WATERWAY

Merits of the Project for Connecting the Mississippi With the Lakes Discussed.

A GOVERNMENT SURVEY-ASKED FOR.

Several Prominent Chicago and Illinois Men Addressed the River and Harbor Committee.

The Canal Would Not Only Serve For Navigation, But Also Would Develop Horse Power to the Value of $20,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The merits of the project for connecting the Mississippi river and the great lakes by way of the Chicago sanitary canal were considered at a special meeting of the river and harbor committee held in the private lobby of the house of representatives Tuesday night. The main purpose of the meeting was to hear from a number of Chicago and Illinois gentlemen, members of the Illinois Valley association, who have been identified with the sanitary canal project, including Lyman E. Cooley, the engineer; George Col. Isidor Taylor of Peoria; Frank Weston of the board of trustees of the sanitary canal, and Henry Mayo, of Ottawa, Ill. The Merchants' exchange of St. Louis, Mo., was represented by H. R. Whittemore, Senator Cullom and Senator Mason. Guests, too, from the Illinois delegation were also present, the senators and some of the members making address after the technical branches of the subject had been presented.

Details of the Project Explained.

Col. Taylor was the first speaker. He pointed out that the project would be a steady drain and explained in detail the nature of the project and the cost up to this time. He said it was not asked that at this time congress take up the work of developing the full national advantages of the waterway, but that a survey made by experts would be necessary to serve as an intelligent basis for considering the entire subject.

L. C. Cooley set forth the engineering features of the project. He said the waterway not only would serve for navigation, but also would develop horse power worth $20,000,000 annually. He maintained that a waterway connecting Chicago and St. Louis would be justified even without the Mississippi river, owing to the enormous commercial development it would bring about. He spoke of the ultimate development of extensive navigation, chiefly by barges, between the lakes and the gulf of Mexico.

As a Military Measure.

Mr. Whittemore, of St. Louis, insisted that the Merchants' exchange of that city had the hearty endorsement of that body to the project. They regarded it, he said, as of great importance to the entire Mississippi river valley.

Senator Cullom spoke in a felicitous way of the national aspect of the canal. As a military measure it would have great value in time of trouble by allowing warships to be brought to the lakes for defensive purposes.

Anderson, a lawyer and author, who was at the Park hotel during the time the Sells were there. Witness knew the Sells and also Harry Lyons. So far as he knew, the conduct of Mrs. Sells all during the time she was at the hotel was that of a lady.

The Poker Game.

John White, a waiter at the Park hotel, was called. He had been a mate with the Sells family. He told of the poker games in the rooms. Said that it was no uncommon thing for them to drop into the Sells rooms at any time, even when Peter was not there. Mrs. Sells would play poker with the poker players. He had seen as many as Mrs. Sells conduct herself as anything but a lady. On cross-examination the witness said that, so far as he knew, the character of Peter Sells was the best.
